Bud Mann of Altoona, Fla., cooled off near Cape Canaveral. NASA says that risk of catastrophic failure is about 1 in 100, more than twice as great as an estimate issued before the loss of the Columbia in 2003. NASA put the chance of acceptable weather at 60 percent. PAGE A14 2 Suspects Named in London The British police have identified two of the four men suspected of trying to set off bombs last Thursday in London's transportation system. They also said the men used a type of plastic container for their devices that is sold in a number of stores in Britain. PAGE A6 A Big Change in Boot Camp Years ago, drill sergeants accused of abusing recruits might have been only reprimanded or transferred. That is no longer true. Just ask Staff Sgt. Michael G. Rhoades. PAGE A12 Remaking a Face After years of heated scientific debate over ethics and technical feasibility, the Cleveland Clinic has become the first medical institution to approve a face transplant. A team led by Dr. Maria Siemionow is seeking a patient to undergo the startling medical procedure. SCIENCE TIMES, PAGE F1 Details on Bombings in Egypt Egyptian officials, in the first detailed account of Saturday's terrorist attack at a resort on Egypt's Red Sea coast, said that the three explosions had been set off by suicide bombers and that police checkpoints might have forced two of the bombers to set off their explosives early, before reaching targets packed with Western tourists. PAGE A3 Record Tower For Chicago The Spanish architect Santiago Calatrava has designed what would be the country's tallest building in Chicago. It would be 115 stories, topping out at 1,458 feet, with a spire that would reach about 2,000 feet. The developer, Christopher T. Carley, plans to announce the $500 million project today. PAGE A13 Creating A Folk Hero Millions of people have seen the frescoes of Constantino Brumidi, the Italian-born artist whose work decorates the United States Capitol. But most people don't know his name. It's one man's mission to restore luster and honors to Brumidi and, perhaps, make him an American folk hero. A1 Evaluation of Palestinian Forces The first independent survey of the Palestinian security environment since the death of Yasir Arafat found that the security forces of the Palestinian Authority were unfit, and said that more attention must be paid to building up institutions. A1 More Details on Egypt Attacks Egyptian officials said that all three explosions were suicide bombings and suggested that police checkpoints may have forced two of the bombers to set off their explosives early, before reaching targets packed with Western tourists. (5, 6, 9) THE SIXTH SENSE -- (1999). In M. Night Shyamalan's first big movie hit, a boy (Haley Joel Osmert) sees dead people. His mother (Toni Collette) is understandably worried about this. And the boy's concerned psychologist (Bruce Willis) doesn't realize, until the very end, how he really fits into the picture. 8 P.M. (25, 64) HELL'S KITCHEN -- In the two-hour season finale, Gordon Ramsay, the British chef who loves to shout, pits the last two chef finalists -- Ralph (right, with Mr. Ramsay) and Michael -- against each other by dividing the restaurant in two. Each man must create his own restaurant in that space, from developing the menu to choosing dā'sÁ©cor to naming the place. Contestants who were eliminated in earlier episodes return to work in the kitchens. 9 P.M. (ESPN2) MLB HALL OF FAME INDUCTION CEREMONIES -- This year's ceremony in Cooperstown, N.Y., honors Wade Boggs and Ryne Sandberg. Mr. Boggs played 11 seasons with the Boston Red Sox, five with the New York Yankees and two with the Tampa Bay Devil Rays. Mr. Sandberg spent his entire career with the Chicago Cubs. 9 P.M. (Lifetime) OFFICER DOWN -- (2005). Sherilyn Fenn (right), who once played Elizabeth Taylor, stars with Casper Van Dien, who once played James Dean, in a television movie about a policewoman who uncovers corruption among her fellow cops. 9:30 P.M. (TBS) FRIENDS -- George Clooney and Noah Wyle guest-star as handsome doctors (what else?) in this 1995 episode. Rachel sprains her ankle and has to be rushed to an emergency room, where she and Monica commit insurance fraud. ANITA GATES	2006-01-05	TX 6-519-622	2009-08-06	TX 6-684-027
